The 450 million people living in and around Asia’s 734 million ha of forests are increasingly threatened by conflict over the control and use of forest resources.

- What drives conflict?
- How does it impact those involved?
- What strategies are being used to manage conflict?

Examining eight cases of communities in conflict with ‘outsiders,’ e.g. land developers or governments, our research aimed to answer these questions.

This side event will be a unique opportunity to learn about the eight cases. There will be a presentation of key findings followed by an open discussion and debate. Intertwoven will be the launch of an interactive conflict bibliography and a new conflict publication from RECOFTC and its partners (both will be available to event participants).

The side event is open to all registered participants of the Congress. Questions from the floor are welcome.
