

Café Science-Politique : the New-Caledonian referendum

Tuesday, 12th of June 4.30-6.00pm

ANU Centre for European Studies, 1 Liversidge St, Acton

Guest speaker: Dr. Carine David, lecturer in public law from the University of New Caledonia, will share her reflections on the transition happening in New Caledonia

New Caledonia is at a crossroads for its political future, and an increasing number of questions are emerging as we approach the end of the period of the Noumea agreement. At the dawn of a referendum of self-determination, which should take place in November, 2018, we can question who are the actors of the political transition? How will it be organized? On which time-scale will it happen? And so many more questions...

After the presentation, Carine will be joined by a panel discussion and Q&A in a café-style atmosphere around a cheese platter

Panelists: A/Prof Asmi Wood (ANU College of Law), Denise Fisher (ANU Centre for European Studies & former diplomat), Noel Derwort (former RAAF Air Commodore)

This event is free and open to the public
