Tok Pisin Language and Cultural Awareness

A micro-credential program offered by the
ANU School of Culture, History &
Language (CHL)

This micro-credential will prepare professionals currently working or expecting to work in Papua New Guinea.

Participants will be immersed in Tok Pisin and gain knowledge of daily life in Papua New Guinea through intensive language training, video footage of real-life situations, and group discussions based on carefully selected readings.

The skills and knowledge acquired will allow participants to respectfully navigate their interactions and relationships with Papua New Guineans and respond to situations in a culturally appropriate way.
